The annual recognition service of the Girl Reserves was held in the William Bingham Gymnasium on Tuesday evening. Twenty-one girls lighted candles and were admitted to the "Circle of Light." More than 60 girls are now enrolled in the club. Following the service there was a short but very interesting program of music, readings and skits. A social hour followed, during which games and dancing were enjoyed. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served.
A good delegation from the student body assembled on the lawn at the homes of Mr. Bingham and Dr. and Mrs. Gehring on the evening preceding the Gehring party's departure for the South. A few old songs were sung as an expression of appreciation and of good wishes for a happy winter. WHEN ELECTRIC SERVICE IS INTERRUPTED

Recently a large American city was without electric current for a short time. The chaos resulting was graphically described by the Boston Herald, which said: "Street lights failed to work, with consequent traffic snafus, radios were struck dumb, electrical machinery in dozens of factories stopped, elevators stuck between floors, pipe organs in movie theatres died with dismal groans and pictures 'froze' on the screen; soda fountains, milk shakers refused to shake, and the supply of carbonated water was cut off; afternoon papers were delayed by the presses."
Such a list could be continued for many pages. Electricity has become so integral a part of our lives and so necessary to all the machinery of our civilization that when service is interrupted for the briefest period of time, business actually comes to a standstill. Behind almost every luxury and necessity we use and almost every task and occupation, is electric power. It is no wonder that electricity has often been considered the greatest agency of progress we have.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young and son Richard were in Portland Sunday and Monday.
A meeting of the Mothers' Club was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Herman Robinson with a program as follows: Hymn, "Shine, Shine in the Sun"; Scripture readings; prayer; vocal solo, Mrs. H. I. Bean; recitation, "Holidays, Faith and Health," Mrs. Stanley Wentzell; roll call with responses, "Something to be Thankful For," reading, "The Winning War," Mrs. H. I. Bean.
A pleasant afternoon was passed at the home of Mrs. Ann Barrett last Thursday when the Ladies Aid met for their regular meeting. After the usual business session an Armistice Day program was carried out with several readings by the members which were of interest. A special feature of the program was the observance of the birthday of two of the members, Mrs. Ada Tyler and Mrs. Constance Wheeler. The room was prettily decorated in their honor in Armistice Day colors, and a cake was presented with a birthday cake. An original toast in verse, given by Mrs. Carrie French, added zest to the occasion. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lyman Wheeler, Nov. 21.

MRS. LILLA T. MORGAN

Mrs. Lilla Tasker Morgan, wife of Albion Morgan, died suddenly at 7:20 o'clock last Thursday evening at her home here. A little more than an hour later her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Babson, passed away at a Berlin hospital.
Mrs. Morgan had been in poor health for a year, but that afternoon she went to Berlin to the bedside of her daughter who was ill with pneumonia. The shock of learning that physicians had given up all hope of her recovery was too great, and a few hours after reaching home the mother succumbed to her grief, added to the burden of ill health.
Mrs. Morgan was born at Milan, N. H., Sept. 20, 1874, the daughter of Frederick and Mary (Wheeler) Swan. She married Arthur E. Wheeler of Milan, and two children were born to them, Louise and Bessie. Mr. Wheeler died about 20 years ago, and she moved to Bethel, later becoming the wife of Albion Morgan, who survives her.
Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Louise Kelley, and three sisters, Miss Rose Harvey, Bethel; Mrs. Minnie McRoberts of Lebanon; Mrs. Elizabeth Easton of East Bridge-water, Mass.; and three granddaughters. Mrs. Morgan was a member of the Episcopal church at Berlin, of Sunset Rehearsal Lodge, Brown Relief Corps, Nacomi Temple Pythian Sisters, and Bethel Grange.
Mrs. Babson was born in Milan, N. H., Jan. 1, 1892. She came to Bethel when quite small and was educated here. She married David Babson, whose tragic death occurred a little more than a year ago, when he drove his automobile into the river at a Rumford ferry, and was drowned.
The family has been living at Berlin but for some time past had been staying here with Mrs. Morgan. Two daughters, Tasker and Ethel, survive her.
Mrs. Babson was a member of the Episcopal church at Berlin.
A double funeral was held at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 1:30. Rev. W. R. Patterson spoke comforting words to the bereaved relatives and friends. The W. R. C. Pythian Sisters, Rehearsal and Grange attended in a body.

MRS. LUCRETIA BARKER

Mrs. Lucetta Barker, widow of the late Nathan Barker of Bethel, passed away Sunday evening at the home of her son, Elmer A. Barker, in Berlin. Mrs. Barker had been in Berlin for some time.
Mrs. Barker was born in Bethel, N. H., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Barker. She is survived by her son, Elmer A. Barker, and her daughter, Mrs. L. A. Barker, both of Berlin. She was a member of the Methodist church at Berlin.
The funeral was held at the home of her son at 1:30 P. M. on Monday afternoon. Interment was at Walden cemetery, Bethel.

JACKSON-BATES

Bethel people are interested in the recent marriage at Washington, D. C., when Miss Genevieve Bates married the late of Arthur H. Jackson. The ceremony was performed in the First Congregational Church by the Rev. John Noble Parker on Oct. 26. Many friends with them much enjoyed the ceremony.

Surprising Number of Uses for Sweet Potato

A cataloging of the uses of the sweet potato sounds as though the writer had stolen a few of the glowing paragraphs used by efficient advertising writers.

To begin with, they are highly valuable in their regular form as human food, and the entire will take any left over with a bovine thank you for the tasty dish.

They may be made into a sirup which is said to produce a very superior taffy. When cut into small particles and properly toasted until thoroughly caramelized they make a fair substitute for chocolate in the flavoring of ice cream and covering of candies. Or if you are avoiding sugars, they will produce a very fine vinegar and can be used as a source of starch.

Then, leaving food for a time, they can be used to produce a number of dyes and have also been found successful in the production of a cooling paint. They have even been employed to mend rubber, and have made good on the job.

They will yield up to 100 bushels an acre, and at the average price of 30 cents a bushel bring in $30, which is not so bad when compared with corn and wheat yield.—Washington Post.

Waterfall That Dwarfs Famous Niagara Falls

Where is the highest waterfall in Europe? It is in France. More than ten times as high as Niagara falls, and the third highest in the world, but that of the Gave de Pau at Gavarnie has recently been especially recommended to tourists. Only the Grand in Labrador, and the Southernland in New Zealand have a longer fall of water than its 1,385 feet. When the season is wet, the cascade drops in one uninterrupted fell, though in the dry summer months it strikes a ledge two-thirds of the way down. The immediate setting for the fall is extraordinary. It descends into the amphitheater known as the Cirque de Gavarnie. This is a basin more than two miles wide which is shut on three sides by mountains rising from 7,000 to 9,000 feet. The proportions of the place are mammoth, in keeping with the singular characteristics of this waterfall. Gavarnie is in the Pyrenees, not far from either Pau or Luchon.—Exchange.

Bible Washington Held

A Masonic lodge of New York city, St. John's, has in its possession a high prized memento of the first President. It is the Bible on which General Washington took the oath of office on the balcony of old Federal hall, in Wall street. On that momentous occasion, so the story goes, the Bible had been forgotten and it was necessary to find one on short notice. Maj. Robert Morton, the officer commanding the regiment of honor, was sent in the midst of being a member of St. John's Masonic lodge. Major Morton, although himself of the lodge, was unwillingly returned to his post with the book. It has been of great importance to the President's inaugural ceremonies. President Harding accepted the offer.

Early Railroad Records

As early as 1815 a record was made in England of 43 miles in 32 minutes. The time the train was proceeding at the rate of one mile in 45 seconds. "At the astonishing velocity of 75 miles an hour." In the same year the American Railroad Journal said "The first day on the London & Birmingham, and on the Great Northwestern railway, a rate of travel at the speed of 55 miles an hour was accomplished. Express trains on these lines run at the rate of nearly 60 miles an hour, stoppage included." During 1848 Antelope engines on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad made a speed of 60 miles an hour.

Organized Beggary

While begging in Japan is not the art and honorable calling that it is some parts of China, nevertheless Tokyo and other large cities there have thousands who make their living soliciting alms in public. Competition is a highly commercial affair. It has made it necessary for the mendicants to organize and a guild now exists and even beggars' law. The operations of these persons are limited to three or four days, and they have a certain way of showing their place.

Birds That Cannot Walk

Members of the swallow family distinguished by their small, oval wings which are used only for clinging perching purposes. They cannot fly or hop on the ground. These spend more of their time on the ground than other birds and they feed on insects which they catch in flight. Even water is scooped up by the birds on the wing. Swallows and purple Martins are the most common species of this family in America.—Pittsburgh Courier.

Built to Defy Time

Many of the buildings of the Middle Ages have stood for 600 or 700 years, showing no greater symptoms of decay than an alteration in color of the materials, while edifices of more recent date show the most noticeable examples of general disregard of solidity.—Lecturer Association Journal.

Idea of Correspondence

A Little Too Laconic

Reeves had engaged a substitute stenographer to take the place of his secretary while she was absent on vacation. The new typist was eager and did very well, even though she made mistakes.

By the end of the first week Reeves, being handicapped, asked the girl if she thought she could write business letters. She assured him that she had specialized in correspondence in business college. Reeves thereupon handed her a sheet of letters on which he had written short memoranda, such as "No" and "Yes," to indicate the nature of his reply.

When the girl had the completed letters on his desk Reeves took a look at them and almost hit the ceiling. For the stenographer had written them thus:

"Gentlemen—

"No."

Others bore "Yes" in line with the notation.

Reeves believes there is too much red tape in business and admits that letters should be shorter than the average, but he considered those waiting for his signature a trifle too laconic.—New York Sun.

Immobility in Animals

Produced by Irritation

There are several ways of hypnotizing animals. With many species of beetles shock will cause them to become rigid.

With the vertebrates, amphibians, fish, birds, and mammals, hypnosis is attained by external irritation. The most effective irritation is caused by placing an animal in a position from which it cannot regain its normal posture without delay, and where it is deprived of escape. A hen cannot move when placed quickly on its back, having its legs held fast for a while. Many fish remain motionless when placed quickly on their backs in a water-filled vessel.

A rat or mouse, if seized sharply by the tail or foot, can be reduced to this state. The male of a certain species of spider pinches the female, thus causing immobility. By a quick blow on the head a rooster can cause a hen to become immobile.

Still Fear Death Curse

Though "amama," or "praying to death," is outlawed in Hawaii by an act which is still on the statute books, this form of reprisal is far from actually extinct, according to the well versed. Recently a modern "fortune teller" has revealed that she has frequent visits from persons (usually Hawaiians) who think that they are the targets for some enemy's "amama" activities, and wish the fortune teller to come to their assistance. Through out the South seas natives in ancient days used various forms of "praying to death" or praying for illness, and often effectively. Whatever the psychological explanation, it seems well established that natives who found themselves the object of this activity in a dreaded "amama" would often pine away and die.

Nonplussed

The schoolmaster was giving his class of boys their weekly Scripture lesson and the boys were in an unusually happy frame of mind, for they were always kept in school later on this day.

"Can any boy quote me a text?" questioned the schoolmaster.

"Please, sir," spoke up Tommy Smart, "Julius went and barged himself."

"That is a text, certainly," said the schoolmaster, "but cannot you give me a better one?"

"Yes, sir," quickly piped up Tommy Smart, "Go thou and do likewise." Birmingham (England) Weekly Post.

Highly Durable Stone

The fabulous stones employed by the Babylonians and early Egyptians as well as among the Greeks and Romans, and at the present at Barter and among the nations of Malabar, were all a species of basalt. Pliny mentions that the columns which adorn the peristyle of the Egyptian labyrinth were of this material and the great length of time it has existed (over 2,000 years) shows the durability of this form of construction. The Romans made free use of the material in constructing their walls, aqueducts, piers and roads. Portions of these still remain.

History of Aviation

A curious old catalogue of books on aviation in the print department of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, brings to mind the interesting and often amusing inventions, scientific and literary, from the time of Leonardo da Vinci to the first successful ascent in 1783 of the Montgolfier balloon. With a charitable mind, one may accept 1783 as the high point in the history of ballooning. All later that date was experimental. Some that time man has been perfecting the invention.

Justly Proud

The Sunday school class had just presented a most successful program in the form of a Colonial tea. Of the members were justly proud and hastened over to aunties to give full account.

"And, oh, auntie," said Mary Ann, "it was the best calomel for any class ever did give."

—because now there's time to browse among all the departments of the store, to go about the business of choosing gifts in that pleasant, unhurried manner that makes Christmas shopping a joy.

—because there's time as you shop to think over the hobbies of your friends, to choose gifts that will stamp you as a person of unusual insight.

EVEN THOUGH CHRISTMAS DAY is six weeks away, its Christmas time again at P. M. & B. As the Holiday season once more unfolds, the traditional Christmas Spirit of Hospitality and Cordiality is again in evidence all through the store. You are in an enchanted land as soon as you step inside our doors.

IF YOU PREFER to avoid December's crowds, you can safely begin your Christmas shopping now. Every department is filled with all that's new, appealing and desirable in gifts. Not in scattered suggestion of varieties to come but with the largest gift stocks in Northern New England—in assortments so complete that you can quickly and easily find the unusual in gifts for everyone on your list.

WHEREVER IT GOES, a P. M. & B. gift is always sure of a warm welcome—because we have always specialized on gifts of the better, more acceptable kind—gifts that satisfy the longing for quality and beauty that exists in every one of us. Our policy of always rejecting the cheap, the tawdry, the commonplace, seconds and imperfects has made the name P. M. & B. as prized on a gift as "Sterling" is on silver.

Yet our gift merchandise can often be purchased for less than seconds and imperfects are sold for elsewhere — and quality for quality, we are never knowingly undersold. And much of our gift merchandise is wrapped in distinctive and attractive Holiday Boxes and folders that add so much to the charm of your gift.

The Town Doctor...

(The Doctor of Towns)

SAYS

HAS BETHEL A HOLE IN ITS HEEL?

How do you feel toward the man who wears good clothes, keeps his shoes shined and his hat cleaned, but always on whose abdominal covering, there is conspicuous evidence of many a slip between the cup and the lip; who always needs a shave, and for the years that you have known him has never had a manicure?

What is your reaction when you behold a lady walking down the street all dressed up in the finest raiment, with a hole in her heel? And what would you think if you saw this same lady every day for a week, and every time that you saw her there was the same hole in the same heel of the same hose?

Whatever your reaction to such people, it is sure that you are not attracted to them. It is certain that contact with them does not fill you with joy and pleasure, nor create a desire to be intimately associated with them.

In people such as called slovenliness—or perhaps you have a better word for it; in communities it is oppressive ugliness. Vacant store rooms with dirty placarded or mended-up windows; broken, cob-webbed and paper-stuffed second story windows in the business district; vacant lots overgrown with weeds, cluttered with all sorts of rubbish and refuse; vacant houses with tumble-down buildings; dirty streets, highway entrances littered with nondescript road signs; open city dumps and other such things of reputation are to a community what a soup-stained vest or a filthy stocking is to otherwise well-dressed people.

I know a town where, seven years ago, a store building in the heart of an attractive business district was gutted by fire. Woods grow rampant through the brickbats within the confines of the building, charred half-walls.

Few years ago a school building surrounded by fine homes was condemned and abandoned. It still stands, dank and gruesome, its broken windows and rotted doorways yawning ghost-like, from under sagging roof and mildewed walls.

The city hall of a town I know was destroyed by storm some time ago. What was the basement of this building is now a catch all—a dumping ground for street sweepings, tin cans, junk and corruption—a rodents' paradise of filth and hogwash in plain view of every passerby.

As you are affected by slovenliness in people, just so are the potential residential, commercial and industrial customers of your community affected by "oppressive ugliness."

Don't tolerate abominations that create "oppressive ugliness." They can be eliminated and it's your business and the business of every other citizen to see to it that they are eliminated, because it's costing you money by driving business out of Bethel and keeping new business and new people from coming in.

Methods of Escaping

From Tornado's Grasp
The old time "cyclone cellar" or "under house" has probably been the method of saving most lives from the fury of the storm. But it is still one of the best places of refuge ever contrived. The construction of the cellar is of a house built on a hill, the cellar is built into the hill, and the entrance is by a door or a trap in the side of the hill. The cellar is usually built of stone or brick, and is usually about six feet deep. The entrance is usually by a door or a trap in the side of the hill. Petroleum's Many Uses
In addition to its fashionable duties in jewelry, petroleum performs many little-known but necessary services to mankind. Radio tubes require petroleum for lubrication; airplanes require petroleum for fuel; automobiles require petroleum for fuel; and so on. Petroleum is a very versatile material, and it has many uses in industry and in daily life.

Suggestion That Skins of Birds Replace Fur
Fur coats are scarce these days and prices high. So the little northern community of Port Barre, Alaska, suggests that skins of birds be used instead of fur. The skins of birds are not only beautiful, but they are also warm and durable. They are also much cheaper than fur, and they are much easier to come by in Alaska.

A London paper says that popular songs reach Russia years after they are forgotten elsewhere. How stirring, to see the Russians tramping into Manchuria to "Ramona."

Trade must go on. A nation with something to sell or the ability to buy is sure to command serious consideration, even in the face of such historic experiences as Russia has recently had.

A publicist says he isn't prepared to say that America should follow the British example of requiring police to go unarmed. We presume he would permit them to carry mouse traps, or something.

A Londoner says love can be more strongly expressed in a letter in Esperanto than in any other language. Another attractive feature is that the heart-balm jury won't know what it is all about.

The boy king of Rumania has been made president of the state jockey club. He will hardly be expected to initiate the fearless horsemanship that distinguished the early career of the prince of Wales.

LOST TREASURE
STIRS ALL PERU

Maps Show Location of Gold, but They Can't Find It.

Lima, Peru.—The lure of buried treasure is once more holding the attention of the Peruvian public. Over the alleged existence of an enormous treasure of gold and silver in the town of Arequipa the press of Lima and Arequipa is carrying columns and a legal battle for title to the yet undiscovered fortune has begun.

During the reconstruction of the city hall of Arequipa a laborer, Andres Rodriguez, discovered beneath a partially demolished wall a bottle containing maps and sketches showing the location of treasure. A small metal box, the contents of which are not publicly known, was also discovered. Constantino Manrique, son of the contracting engineer, Andres Manrique, was present at the discovery and carried the bottle and box to his father.

Makes Formal Claims.
Having examined the maps and sketches, Andres Manrique sent his son, Jose, to Lima to make a formal legal claim for the treasure before the federal government. Meanwhile members of the city council of Arequipa were complaining that the claim should have been made before a local court and have claimed the treasure in the name of the city since the maps were discovered on property rented by the city from the Arequipa club.

The purported treasure is supposed to have been buried by the Jesuits before their expulsion in 1772 on property then belonging to an alleged Marquis de la Encina y Zaragoza. Both the Arequipa and Lima press have published details that such a title ever existed in Peru, but an old woman in Arequipa, who claims to be a descendant of this nobleman, has put in a claim for the treasure if discovered.

Andres Rodriguez, the laborer, has also entered a denunciation, while members of the Arequipa club, owners of the land, are contemplating taking action if the situation justifies it.
Jose Ugarte, seventy-seven-year-old employee of the municipality of Arequipa, declares that 40 years ago
Dr. Moscoso Melgar, then mayor of Arequipa, was in possession of the maps and made a thorough search, without locating any treasure. At that time it was thought that a large solid gold image of St. Ignatius Loyola had been buried beneath the building.
The search, made at night, led to the discovery of two subterranean passages beneath the city hall—one leading to the church of St. Augustin and the other leading to the church of the Compania de Jesus.

Passages Reopened.
Another former employee of the city government, Manuel Simez, who alleges that he was a close friend of Mayor Melgar, declares that he has no knowledge of such search having been made, but adds that it is entirely possible that the information was not communicated to him.
As a result of the various claims made in the municipal court in Are-quipa, the mayor and the councilmen have had the passages reopened and a search made, without any treasure having been discovered.

A municipal judge, Dr. Pedro German Delgado, has ordered Senior Man-rique to produce the original maps and plans, but inasmuch as the denouncement already had been made by Manrique before the federal government it is believed that legal techni-calties will prevent such presentation for a number of weeks. Meanwhile other claimants are coming forward, hoping to share a treasure the majority of the Arequipinos believe to be nonexistent.

English Lead Other

Foreigners in France

Paris.—The Englishman leads all nationalities as a permanent resident of France, according to recent statistics of immigration, 81,000 now being classed as fixed homeholders in this country, and not including transient travellers and tourists. North Americans follow second with 50,000.

Another "Meanest Thief"

Nashville, Tenn.—Another "meanest thief" has been discovered here.
Carl Jones, twenty-five, Memphis, was brought before city court on a charge of denuding and disorderly conduct and carrying a pistol. His arrest was brought about after he had been announced from the house of Julius Vincent, 617 Main, son of Carl man H. S. Vincent.

Ceylon Ship's Name

Contains 24 Letters

London.—There's something funny about the name picked for ships. Sailors have a passion for naming their craft
after the stars—Venus, Jupiter, Saturn and others. Twenty-four merchant ships of over 100 tons bear the name of Jupiter. Presumably the longest name conferred on a ship is "Venayagawpakintechany," borne by a bark registered in Ceylon.

Both Had Good Reason to Be Proud of "Jobs"

Lady Townsend at one time headed the United Family league, a society which aimed for better living conditions for the working people and an interesting story is told of one of their social affairs.

At a dance at which she was one of the patronesses, a workman swaggered up to her and said:
"I don't suppose you would dance with me, would you?"

"I should like to very much," the marchioness replied.

During the dance the man held her at arms length, looking her over from head to foot, and finally said:
"You're awfully proud of being a marchioness, ain't you?"

Lady Townsend confessed herself confused for a moment before she replied:
"What is your job?"

"I'm the best steamfitter in this part of England."

"You're proud of it, then, because you are good at your own job."

"Of course."

"Well, my job is being a marchioness and I'm proud of it because I try to be as good a marchioness as I know how."—Los Angeles Times.

Divisions of Travels

Before "Age of Speed"

In the middle of the last century there were four kinds of tours into which travelling at that time was sometimes divided.

A "Tour de Force" was a trip to such places as Algiers, Botany Bay or some other penal colony and was usually made in handcuffs.

A "Tour de Gascon" was an inaugural tour like the travels of Baron Munchausen, and received its name from the well-known inventive proclivities of the Gascons.

The third class was "The Tour de Nesle" so called because everything was paid for on the spot, "on the nail," a play on the English word.

Last, but most important, was "The Grand Tour," as it was sometimes called. This was supposed to be performed by every young gentleman of good family before he was considered fit to live at home. It gave him an opportunity to see his wild oats away from the restraining influence of home and parents. When the bills came in fathers usually flew into a rage. Hence the name.—New York Times.

Swedish Relics Extend

Far Back Into History

Swedish prehistoric relics are the richest in the world, and this is because the same race has inhabited the country for about 15,000 years, says
Professor Curman, state antiquarian.
The scientific museums of Sweden contain more than half a million treasures of antiquity. The structure of the landscapes, with patches of fertile soil lying among barren areas, thick forests or craggy hills, has also helped to preserve these materials of ancient days. These natural obstacles have kept farmers from encroaching upon the sites where prehistoric tombs, fortifications and Viking rune stones have been hidden. Moreover, the Swedish government realized 300 years ago the importance of preserving relics of antiquity and enacted laws to that end.

Execution of Animals

Pigs, cows, horses were tried before Judge and Jury for centuries before Christ and on down through the Middle Ages. Lawyers have been appointed to plead for them. If and when convicted, to deprive them of none of the privileges granted to human beings, these four-legged criminals were given a session on the rack, or some equivalent torture for the moment of passage.

After his turn on the rack, the animal was executed by the gallows. If small enough a pig or a wolf, the executioner would occasionally dress him up in men's clothing, pants and coat, and put him in a human cage, then the rope was placed around his neck and the poor animal swung over the heads of the howling crowd.

Old Water Bug

The water bug, an aquatic bug is found in enormous numbers in the near Mexico City. It swarms on the top of the water and it is supposed to be able to breathe through its back.
Its method of breathing is a very curious thing. It has a long, thin tube which it inserts into its back and contains a thin film of air. It is under water for a long time. The eggs are laid under water and are attached to weeds. The mother bug these eggs with food in making them.
Adult bugs are also eaten by the native.

Charging It Up

An American merchant called his son into his office the other day and undressed himself as follows:
"I haven't been feeling quite so well for a few days past. Well, and so I have just made my will, leaving everything to you."

"Oh, father," said the son, "I don't like to discuss these affairs with you at all. I hope you live for many years yet. I'm sure."

"So do I, Well, so do I, but I just called to tell you that the lawyer's fee for making out the will is 30 shillings, and this sum will be kept off your next week's pay."

Shah's Parting Gesture

The shah of Persia, on a visit to London, was being driven through the streets in an open carriage, bowing to the throngs that lined along the sidewalks to greet him, when he noticed a small boy who had climbed a lamp post thumping his nose at him.
He at once inquired into the meaning of this gesture and a confused old replied that it was a signal of respect says Living Age. The shah remembered this quaint custom, and, upon his departure, when the flower of British diplomacy gathered on the main platform to see him off, he enthusiastically thumped his nose at the group.

Stars as a Time Standard

The use of the sun as a standard of time measurements is going to be discarded in favor of the use of fixed stars for the purpose. Observations of stars, rather than the sun, has three advantages. There are no fixed stars available. The motion of the sun to the earth causes a variation of position he cause of the

MANY SEEK HUGE ENGLISH ESTATE

Smuggler's Fortune Is Cause of Many Tragedies and Crimes.

London.—A story of romance, tragedy and violence lies behind the claim to property in London worth $200,000,000.

In the last 100 years more than 2,000 claims to the Angell estates as they are called, have been advanced. They have included 80 claims from Canada alone, two peers and a general.

Even at the present time 200 people in different parts of the world believe that they are the rightful owners of this vast fortune, comprising some sixty square miles, embracing the London suburbs of Brixton, Stockwell, Streatham, parts of Waltham, Lambeth, Balham, Thornton, Heath, Purley and Middlesdown. The yearly rental is said to yield $5,000,000.

The estate belonged in the first place to John Stockwell, a seafarer and smuggler who appears to have done well for himself. He had a wife, from whom he was separated, and on his retirement he went to live at Stockwell with a widow named Angell and her son, John.

Stockwell died in 1740 without leaving a will for any means to indicate how he left his property. The widow Angell stopped all discussion by indicating that what she had should hold. The first member of the Stockwell family who tried to enter her premises was thrown through a window and broke a leg.

The widow realized, however, that resistance alone was not enough. Lawyers were consulted and they decided that the only way was to destroy all evidence which might prove valuable in a court of law.

Hence embassies were sent all over the country where the names of Stockwell and Angell were known, with instructions to destroy all records of their names.

Then began one of the most amazing series of crimes ever known. Churches all over the country were broken into, records were tampered with, and pages relating to members of the disputing families torn out or forged in some way to make them unrecognizable.

All Records Missing.

So well was their work done that to this day no trace can be found of any birth, marriage, death or burial certificate of the original John Stockwell. A John Stockwell died at Falmouth, Massachusetts, in 1740, but all records relating to him are missing.

The Angell estate had orders to stop at nothing. Poisoning, forging and robbery of these crimes they committed, and later other individuals who that were committed.

will provided for "the gentlemen and the two clergymen to eat together," the charges of their board and liquor being calculated at $130 per annum each.

"Their clothing," said the will, "is to be a light-colored cloth all of one color. The hat is to have a narrow gold lace." The sum of $25 a year was allowed for these clothes.

Angell left $30,000 to build the college, but it was never built.

Of all the more recent claimants to the estate, William Adrian Allery, who died at the age of eighty-three, was possibly the most energetic.

Threatens to Fight.

After searching through musty old files and records for a period of 50 years, he claimed to have gathered together evidence establishing him as the direct heir to John Angell, since he was the son of Angell's third daughter who married a man named Allery.

Allery interested legal experts in his claim and a public subscription fund was established to assist him in his fight, for at the time Allery was in straitened circumstances.

The wheels of the law's machinery did not move fast enough for Allery and he decided to take it into his own hands. Last year he seized Russell House, Brixton, which had been the property of the ecclesiastical commissioners, who direct the whole estate.

Allery posted a notice on the front door ordering all tenants on the estate to pay their rent to him "as legal heir and ground landlord."

Failing to elicit him, the commissioners took the matter to court where Allery agreed to leave the house, but not before he had barricaded the house and threatened to fight any one who tried to put him out.

Fresh Claimants Yearly.

Allery's next move was to offer $50,000 for every $5,000 subscribed to his fund. However, he died while the organizers of the fund and lawyers were still endeavoring to unravel the complicated family tree.

Every year brings its fresh complement of claimants to the estate, and each claimant's evidence only serves to thicken the mystery. Also the news of the discovery of yet another member of the Angell or Stockwell families causes still more claimants to appear. At least half a dozen people called on Allery at Brixton to tell him that they were the rightful owners of the property.

One of the latest of these discoveries was an entry in the register of Stockham church which read: "May 18, 1673—baptized Mary, daughter of Jonathan Angell and his wife Eliza-beth."

The group is fighting to prove that it is theirs, one of the many perpetrated by the widow Angell's emissaries in their efforts to destroy all evidence.
